A Great Success!

Miss Rives's New Novel

The Valiants of Virginia

More thoroughly characteristic of its author than even her great success, Satan Sanderson, the new novel, The Valiants of Virginia, is Hallie Erminie Rives from the first word to the last. Charming in atmosphere, original and striking in its character values it should take high place among the Rives romances, if not indeed the highest place.

TO MY HOME

Compiled by FRANCES and WALLACE RICE

Of all the languages of the earth, English alone has a word to express all that "Home" stands for. The greatest thoughts of our race have been inspired by and within this beloved circle. This little volume contains the finest of these treasures.

TO MY MOTHER

What the World's Great Minds have thought of the World's most intimate relation. This volume is an appreciation of Mother—the one subject of universal appeal. A gift for any mother from her children. On the cover a beautiful reproduction, in colors, of Whistler's wonderful picture of his Mother.

FRIENDSHIP

A Compilation by JOHN C. QUINCY

Selected from every source, these brief, adequate, words on friendship; by authors of all ages; help to make of this book a work of interest to every one who believes in that truest and noblest relationship of man to man—"Friendship." Not "a library book," but one to be read and re-read.

A LIST OF BOOKS FOR DISCRIMINATING BOOKSELLERS

FICTION

The Golden Rose
By MRS. HUGH FRASER and J. I. STAHLMANN

"One of the noblest novels that has appeared in English in twenty years. . . . Far above and beyond the noble theme and the perfect technique is the spirit in which the novel has been written. It is the most beautiful meditation on human life that I can recall in the entire range of English fiction."—REV. JOHN TALBOT SMITH in The Ave Maria. $1.35 net. Postage, 13 cents extra.

One of the Multitude
By GEORGE ACORN

With an introduction by ARTHUR C. BENSON

"Just such a heart-stirring and thought-evoking chronicle as that with which Mr. George Meek, under the sponsorship of Mr. H. G. Wells, arrested the attention of the English-reading world two years ago."—The Dial.
$1.25 net. Postage, 11 cents extra.

The Vanishing Man
By R. AUSTIN FREEMAN

A detective story of which a hardened reader of detective stories for sixty years states: "Of course Conan Doyle has some wonderful yarns, but is there anything that can compare with this?" $1.25 net. Postage, 13 cents extra.

The Squire's Daughter
By ARCHIBALD MARSHALL
Author of "Exton Manor," etc

English country life, and the characteristics, foibles, peculiarities, and personalities of what are called "County people," written by an English novelist who follows very successfully in the steps of Anthony Trollope.
$1.25 net. Postage, 15 cents extra.

NON-FICTION

On Emerson, and Other Essays
By MAURICE MAETERLINCK

Of interest, not alone as searching yet sympathetic criticisms of great philosophers by a fellow-philosopher, but still more by reason of the light they throw on the development of Maeterlinck's own philosophy, are these essays on Emerson, Novalis, and others. $1.25 net. Postage, 11 cents extra.

A Miscellany of Men
By G. K. CHESTERTON

Every new volume of Chesterton's essays seems more brilliant, breezily humorous, and astonishingly clever than the last. Nor must one hastily conclude that the author is not profound because he is constantly witty and frequently funny. On the contrary; he reasons admirably and sees keenly and justly. And this combination of snap and sparkle with underlying solid sense makes him peculiarly attractive to clever people. $1.50 net. Postage, 14 cents extra.

Dancing and Dancers of Today
By CAROLINE and CHARLES H. CAFFIN

The modern revival of dancing as an art, with particular emphasis on notable modern dancers, and a discussion of the history and development of the various forms of dancing they represent. With many illustrations from photographs of famous dancers. $4.00 net. Postage, 31 cents extra.

Reminiscences of a Diplomatist's Wife
By MRS. HUGH FRASER
Author of "A Diplomatist's Wife in Many Lands"

Another book from that same accomplished sister of Marion Crawford, who has already given the literary and artistic world two delightful volumes of sensible and witty gossip.

"If everyone enjoys Mrs. Hugh Fraser's 'A Diplomatist's Wife in Many Lands' as much as I have," said the noted critic, Miss Jeannette L. Gilder, "the book will be one of the most popular of the season." Enough readers have enjoyed it to make it one of the most popular books of its kind for two seasons.
Illustrated $3.00 net. Postage, 20 cents extra.

NEWSPAPER ENCOURAGEMENT OF BOOK BUYING.

ABOUT two weeks ago the Philadelphia North American gave over a full two columns of its editorial space to an answer to the question, "Why People Should Own Books." A signed statement, under the same heading, by the Mayor of the city, properly displayed and illustrated with his portrait, gave added emphasis to the answer. Of course the answer was obvious: "The history of the human mind," says the North American, "is the history of books." No thinking man can deny that "this, indeed, would be a sad world if the buying of books should cease"; and to say that "in books many of our deepest and most lasting of friendships are formed," is to utter what is a truism among intellectual people. But because the subject-matter of this well-phrased editorial—it is reprinted elsewhere in this issue of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY—seems accepted and obvious to us of the book trade, does not make it so to the public at large; and its statements will bear, in this hurrying age of ours, frequent and emphatic iteration.

As a matter of fact, this editorial was the first fruits of a serious and well-planned campaign for book-buying publicity inaugurated a month ago by the Booksellers' Association of Philadelphia. To start newspaper agitation in favor of the reading and owning of books—this was the idea; and a special committee, consisting of Walter S. Lewis, of Strawbridge & Clothier; Louis A. Keating, of the American Baptist Publication Society; and James W. Le Gallez, of George W. Jacobs & Company, was appointed to work out its details. Mr. Lewis unselfishly says that most of the credit for both the idea and its practical working out is due Mr. Keating; but the Philadelphia association is pre-eminently one where every member bears a hand.

Here is a field of legitimate endeavor lying before the booksellers—or booksellers' association, if there is one—of every city in the United States. Nor should it be difficult to interest your local papers. Of course, there is the incentive of book advertising, past or prospective, for the newspaper consistently appealing to the intellectual interests of its community. But entirely aside from selfish considerations, you will probably find the journals of standing in your city more than willing to co-operate with you in creating and stimulating the book-buying appetite. Book news, timely editorials on subjects of purely literary moment, give dignity to a paper. Even more potent is the genuine spirit of public service which actuates most newspapers. Book reading is cultural, delightfully educative, sanely recreational—all in one. The community that reads, reads much and wisely, is a prosperous and healthy one. The man that reads, reads wisely, is an interesting man to know, a man that helps his community. Any worthy newspaper is glad to do its part to add to his number.

When so much has been said about stimulating a desire for books by cultivating the public taste, it is noteworthy that this shaping of public opinion through the editorial columns of daily papers, one of the most direct means of achieving the end sought, has been hitherto neglected. Newspaper readers may suspect the sincerity of an editor's political views; they cannot fail to be influenced by a systematic insistence on the pleasure and profit to be derived from good reading.

Here in New York, the Globe, among other papers, merits commendation for its occasional editorials—ripe, spirited and thoughtful comments—on literary subjects. Within a month it has printed among its editorials an appreciation of the Loeb Classical Library and a defense of Ibsen against a charge made in a recent book. Such intelligent effort on the part of other editors would help the book trade incalculably, while adding directly to the prestige of the papers themselves.

UNDER the new American copyright code, it is provided in Section 7 that no copyright shall subsist in any publication of the United States government. The new British code, on the contrary, in Section 18, provides for Crown copyright in publications of the government, at the discretion of the Crown. A British Treasury minute, recently issued, defines which government publications are hereafter to be free from copyright and which to be considered copyright, including in the latter such works as special reports, e. g., similar to that of the "Challenger" expedition, ordnance maps and the like, on the ground that, since the government has expended large sums in producing such works, there is no reason why individual publishers should benefit from them. The contrast between the two codes in this respect is interesting, and the attitude of the British authorities shows a curious conception of the reason for the undertaking by the government of such enterprises. It might be said, in reply, that a government does not publish works for its own profit, but for the benefit of all its people, and this benefit is to be secured by the widest publicity, and, therefore, that free use of material otherwise copyrightable should be gladly permitted.

WHY PEOPLE SHOULD OWN BOOKS.

An Editorial in The Philadelphia North American.

It was some time during the stress of the late political campaign that a friend of The North American's, a gentleman of cultivated mind and broad intellectual experience, wrote us a letter about books. A single passage from the letter is sufficient to our present purpose:

> The mass of printed matter that is being turned off the presses is nothing short of appalling. Every day adds to the accumulation of the world's books. The spectacle suggests a question as to the wisdom of buying books at all. From your advantageous view point as an observer of the constantly changing conditions of the world, will you be so good as to tell me why I should buy books?

The letter seems to be more in the nature of a challenge than an inquiry. Knowing our friend as we do, however, we feel that the passage we have quoted does not represent his normal state of mind. It is rather a reflection of a certain degree of satiety, just as one feels after a sumptuous dinner that one never wants to eat again.

This indeed would be a sad world if the buying of books should cease. If ever the evil genius of the race should plot successfully to turn back the march of civilization and lead the world again into darkness and barbarism, he would first stop the making of books, and then destroy all that already exist.

The history of the human mind is the history of books. Its first firm, sure steps forward were made in the days when a book was "a palimpsest, a prophet's holograph, effaced, erased and written o'er." And the development of the intellect of man has been exactly timed until "Of making many books there is no end."

But perhaps our correspondent may not deem this obvious history an answer to his question. After all, what he asks is why should he or why should any man buy books. The land is full of libraries, more or less public. The common dispensaries, erected to the glorification of the canny ironmaster, will supply almost any book one might desire to read, unless one lives remote from all cities and villages.

Public libraries have great usefulness in promoting taste for reading. But as a substitute for owning books, they will satisfy no one except him who is willing that all his friends should live in barracks under public supervision, to be visited only by permission of a public functionary, the hours of communion defined and restricted, and the friend to be sent back to the bunkroom at the end of a stated term.

"A blessed companion is a book—a book that fitly chosen is a lifelong friend."

And after all, how few friends—how little companionship—are the lot of any individual! "There are fewer friends on earth than kings."

And our modern complex activities tend to take from us our friends, while it enlarges our acquaintanceship. Why do we love our friends? Why does John love this man and James that? It is because James has had the opportunity to know the human side of the one, and John of the other.

Our friends supply us with the touch of life. They are our object lessons in humanity. But the widest circle of friends possessed or that can be possessed by any individual is narrow, is exceedingly minute, as compared to the great range of human character. Our knowledge of life and of mankind would indeed be small if we depended only on our personal experiences for it. For in how few instances do we ever pass the outer guard of conventionality and learn to know any human intimately?

To supply this deficiency is the greatest function of books. It matters not whether the book be history or poetry, or fiction or science. Its value is in its human elements, in its power to put the reader a little closer to the heart of humanity, to give him a wider knowledge of his kind, and of the things which affect his kind. Books are the collected and recorded experiences of all times and climes.

> Books, we know,
> Are a substantial world, both pure and good.
> Round these, with tendrils strong as flesh and blood,
> Our pastime and our happiness will grow.

It is in books that many of our deepest and most lasting of friendships are formed. And these are real friendships, because they are founded on the intimate human traits which we know only in the book. But when was such an intimacy, such a friendship formed through a book borrowed from a library? The real joy of books is lost unless we have them about us as our friends, to dwell with us, to amuse, to entertain, to instruct, to comfort, to inspire us, when we feel the need of amusement, entertainment, instruction, consolation or inspiration. No one ever came to know a book intimately unless it were part of his household, unless he lived with it in friendship, sympathy and understanding.

"Reading maketh a full man." But the sage had in mind reading such as has been defined by Ruskin: "And, therefore, first of all, I tell you earnestly and authoritatively (I know I am right in this) you must get into the habit of looking intensely at words, and assuring yourself of their meaning, syllable by syllable—nay, letter by letter."

This is the kind of reading that enables the humblest to become the friend and companion of the noblest, not only of the living, but of the dead.

Will you gossip with your housemaid or stable boy when you may talk with queens and kings; or flatter yourselves that it is with any worthy consciousness of your own claims to respect that you jostle with the hungry and common crowd for entree here and audience there, when all the while this eternal court is open to you, with its society wide as the world, multitudinous as its days—the chosen and mighty of every place and time?

It has been said that Lincoln's reading, until he had begun the study of the law, was restricted to the Bible and Shakespeare. But he dwelt with those marvelous books. They were his most intimate companions. No living individuals were so much so. They became part of his life. Their influence is apparent in his words, thought and action throughout his whole career.

To the sacred writers and the inspired poet, Lincoln added Lincoln, and that was all sufficient. The common intellect is not so fortunate, but it finds some means to make up the deficiency in the wonder-working printer's art of today that puts books within the reach of nearly everybody. The modest parents of our generation can give their children collections of books which Thomas Lincoln could not have purchased with a year's cash receipts from his backwoods farm.

What a wonderful thing it is for children to have books. Books supply a moral and intellectual background that will influence whole lives, that will enliven intellectual processes, broaden vision and develop correct tastes and capacity for pure enjoyment.

Some strong characters have triumphed over the blighting influence of a bookless childhood and youth. But, excepting these, look about among the men and women you know, pick out those who think clearly and express themselves accurately, who have mental vision, who have high aspirations, who have a taste for the finer things of life and who are capable of enjoying them—you will find that such men and women were the children of homes where books abode. The books may have been few or many. But they were part of the lives of these children, companions, guides, mentors, friends.

Our correspondent who asked the question which we have undertaken to answer here has no children. If he had, he never would have asked it. But considering it, even from his isolated situation, it still calls forth the same answer. For, said the grim old philosopher of Ecclefechan, "The true university of these days is a collection of books." And who that at a nominal cost may make a university part of his daily life, an appendage to his own home, is willing to forego the prodigious benefits that accrue to those who live with books?

PREPARING FOR HOLIDAY BUSINESS.

An Address Delivered Nov. 27th, In The Booksellers' League's Series of Trade Lectures, by Mr. Clive Mecklin, of Brentano's, New York City.

In accepting the invitation to speak to the Booksellers' School, on the subject of "Preparing for Holiday Business," my first thought was that an experience of some years with one of the representative bookstores of the world, would equip me to tell the bookseller something he didn't already know. The more I thought on the subject, and conjured up all the past experiences in my mind, the more grave doubts I began to have as to whether anything I could say would not be an old story to the bookseller. The subject of "Preparing for Holiday Business" might more aptly be called "Preparing for Book Business" and apply equally well for Easter, Labor Day or the 4th of July, for my observations prove that the life of a bookseller is one everlasting preparation, and not confined to the Holidays alone. The profession of bookselling is such a life-long study, and most of us are so incomplete and unfinished in our education, that my fifteen years' experience seems a bit inadequate in equipping me to talk as an expert. Perhaps, however, if I may not tell you anything new I may have a different point of view on the fundamental principles of building up and maintaining the machinery of carrying and distributing books at retail. In using the word "bookseller," I am including all character of persons in every capacity who assist in the undertaking, from the owner down through the management, the buying, selling, office and delivery staff. The office boy is as much a bookseller as the owner, and sometimes a better one.

The question of whether stock in a bookstore is good or not, has no bearing on the machinery of handling it. It is merchandise only, costing so much, and selling for so much. The physical machinery makes no distinction as to whether it is distributing "Joe Miller's Joke Books," or "Swinburne's Poems," all books look alike to the practical man responsible for safe and efficient handling.

CHOOSING OF SALES FORCE THE VITAL POINT.

The choosing of help is the vital point in a bookselling organization. Andrew Carnegie ascribes his wealth to the ability to pick the man who could tell him what he didn't know. Bookselling offers a rare opportunity to the young man or young woman of sound, normal mind, who can see in the profession a chance to be thoroughly satisfied and proud in the occupation. It isn't any easy job. It isn't one that brings quick riches. More often it is a long, steady pull, but its results are sure to the conscientious worker who need have no fear of ever needing any credentials from his fellow citizens. His profession and his success in it are his credentials and bring the community's approval.

The gradual passing of the older literary atmosphere of the bookstore, to the modern commercial surroundings of bookselling, need cause no uneasiness. Reading is not on the decline. Statistics prove that the per capita expenditure for books was never so high as at present. The book-buyer is just as thirsty for knowledge, but his capacity for quick absorption of what he reads has greatly increased and he learns and judges and decides more quickly. The old time bookseller was content to watch his customer enter his store, browse among the books for hours, and finally bring a volume to the bookseller and say that he would take it. Nowadays, the bookbuyer is barely inside the bookstore before he is asked, "Are you being waited on?"

No human being should enter the book business who has not first of all the crowning virtue of patience and self-control. All other virtues pale beside these. They are the necessary foundation stone of the industry, for perhaps no other occupation requires quite so much philosophy and serenity. But the man who loves the profession, has much to be thankful for. It offers a solemn pride to the man who has his heart in his work. He is surrounded by the wisdom and achievement of mankind since the world began. There is nothing worth while in the history of the ages that is not accessible to him, and no matter what his duty or responsibility, he cannot but unconsciously absorb the grace, the beauty, the wisdom and the help of literature. He is bound to become a better man in spite of himself. How much more a man must think of himself when his chosen vocation is the handling of books rather than dull, commonplace merchandise. He has an inspiration that should bring him to his work every morning with a feeling of fresh ambition, renewed vigor and energy, and added pride and content in his daily life. If every bookseller would realize his vast field of possibility for self satisfaction, there would be fewer problems in the business.

Through books you can call up the ablest spirits, the gentlest poets, the wisest counselors, the most learned philosophers, and the greatest generals, and make them serviceable to you. You have a fine mission in the world. As a bookseller you should demand the strong, clean book, the book that will bring the virtues to the world, the serious book that will pass on its fine content, and the high-hearted book that will shed its courage. Put all your strength into your efforts to force this clean, wholesome and healthy literature into the hands and minds of the public. Shun the light, frothy, fugitive literature as unworthy of your time as compared to the book of value that will always have a place in the hearts and souls of men.

The preparations made by a bookseller for holiday work will differ with the size of the business. In a large business, where sales depend so much upon the quickness and the amount of information on the part of the salesmen, such preparation will be of a more intricate character.

THE PROBLEM OF EXTRA HELP FOR THE HOLIDAYS.

The average bookseller will probably be able to negotiate the business he will do at the Christmas season with a moderate addition to his staff. He will, of course, have made himself thoroughly well acquainted with the various books announced and published by the various publishers for this particular season, and he will have ordered what he considers to be the proper supply of stock. And he will no doubt have sent out a sufficient number of book publishers' announcements to his customers, with letters informing them that he is prepared to do all he can for them. By this and many other minor items of equal importance he will prepare himself and his salesmen for the occasion. But in a large business where the sales will depend upon some hundred assistants, the matter becomes a complicated one. Such assistants are composed of the regular help and of the temporary help obtained for such season. The regular help will no doubt be well acquainted with what is being published and with what the customers of the business demand and are likely to buy. But the temporary help are, as a rule, unequipped with such knowledge. The question arises then, how shall this temporary help be fitted for the arduous duties which they will be required to perform during the holiday business?

I have always been possessed with the idea that the temporary employee in the book business was unfairly dealt with, and was not given the chance to develop according to his capacity or the opportunities. He is usually engaged in a hurry, put to work in a hurry and, generally speaking, is in a hurry forever afterward. The experienced salesman is too busy responding to the actual demands on his time to give the new-comer the benefit of his skill. As a result, the willing but hampered fellow is floundering, trying to swim beyond his depth, giving anything but the service he should and wants to give. There are thousands of healthy minded and robust bodied young men and young women in this country, graduating from our schools and colleges who would welcome the chance to enter the book business, but the industry is only beginning to wake up to the idea that it really has something practical and tangible to offer to young America in the way of a profession. Bookselling is looking up. Many of the discouragements are a thing of the past. The bookseller is taking more heart in his work, but there is not enough young fresh blood being injected into the veins of the business, and every bookseller knows the difficulty of finding a supply of really competent help.

THE BOOKSELLERS' SCHOOL—A STEP FORWARD.

The Booksellers' School is the right idea, but it should in some way attract the new material as well as appeal to the desire of the persons already engaged in the profession, for further knowledge. I have always believed that a vigorous and never ending campaign of education should be the aim of the entire book trade. This could take the form of regular meetings or night classes and, in my opinion, should be held, in this city at least, in the different bookstores, where practical illustrations and methods could be shown and where the surroundings of stock and machinery of distribution would be more impressive and instructive. Competition is not so selfish that this exchange of experience and ideas would prevent the bookseller from giving of his wisdom to his competitor, any stimulation in one branch of the business will help all around. There is plenty of business for all, and there is great opportunity for educating the public which believes that the bookseller should be wise and reliable, for is he not immersed in the atmosphere of wisdom and knowledge?

I believe that the Booksellers' School should consist of a thorough instruction generally in all the serious and permanent books as published. The school should have assigned for various periods, thoroughly trained and competent instructors.

It is assumed, of course, that the trained assistant will be acquainted with the general class of literature published in previous years. But he will require a special grinding in the new publications issued for particular seasons, and for which no doubt there will be a particular demand. All the catalogues of all the publishers should form a matter of careful study on the part of the salesmen and proper tests should be made of that knowledge. Oral questions should be asked of them by the instructor, which questions should attempt to measure the amount of selling and profitable knowledge the man has in his head. Special questions should be asked which would test his quickness to apply his knowledge of titles to his knowledge of subjects. He should, for instance, be asked for a book in a particular subject of which neither title nor author's name is given. And he should especially be asked to show his selection from a number of books which he would suggest to a customer who permitted himself say a limit of $5.00, $10.00, $15.00 or $20.00 for purchases. This instruction and examination should be most carefully gone into and most thoroughly canvassed. It is one of the most important methods by which assistants may utilize knowledge to the best advantage.

They should also be instructed in the contents of some of the more important books and in their real values for book buyers. And they should be asked to give reasons why such a book is deserving of a customer's attention and a customer's buying.

They should also be taught the art of laying out books on tables for special occasions, and they should have a competent knowledge of what stock they have left every day and should be able to report which books have gone best and what kind of books, in their opinion, will go best the next day. All these points are matters for preparation, and even the best of salesmen with the most experience can learn from such instruction at such a time.

One most important thing to note is that if the firm distributes catalogues from various publishers, the salesman should be thoroughly well acquainted with all the items in those catalogues. A customer should not feel that the catalogues sent out have been instigated by the publisher, but have been sent out by the firm itself. The point I make is, that the customer should realize that these catalogues are the result of the bookseller's own efforts on behalf of the customer. All these matters tend to increase the bookseller's business with the book buyers, and on such matters too much stress cannot be laid.

THE IMPORTANCE OF LITTLE THINGS.

Special instructions on those occasions should also be given as to the method of making out orders and records, and as to the necessity for correctness in writing down addresses and names and noting how the customers desire their articles to be sent. Every point which makes for the least amount of errors and the least inconvenience to the customer should be impressed upon the salesman. Of course, no instructor can teach the business of bookselling to any salesman in a few lessons. A general statement, however, which should suggest to him the ways and means and give him hints for arriving at proper judgments about any customer can be given him in writing. In other words, a knowledge of human nature is always necessary and such instructions should be based upon the idea of suggesting in general terms, how a salesman can employ his own instinctive faculties and his own good sense.

Preparing for holiday work seems to be merely the concentration in more compact form of all the skill and experience you have acquired during the year. Avoid all unnecessary tax on your time, health and strength, try to keep free from nervous excitement, get all the rest and sleep you can, be courteous at all times to customers, be civil to your fellow employees, be honest, polite and decent. Do not grow despondent, weary or sarcastic, and do not let yourself believe that customers can by any possibility be unreasonable or insolent. Keep in that frame of mind, that will impel you to do the serious work cheerfully. It will help to lessen your burden, if work is undertaken in this spirit. Don't be ashamed of your ignorance. Let your customer know that there is someone in the store who knows what you do not. You must see that the customers obtain the the highest order of service and ability that they expect. The house looks to you to see that its reputation for service and reliability is maintained. Endeavor to be posted on all new books and announcements. Make no promise or statement that is not fully within your power or knowledge, and in accord with the policy of your employer. Don't dispute with customers or fellow workers.

The Holiday Season is full of humor and amusement for the bookseller, every minute brings a chance to smile and feel good. Your pride is helping you to stand the strain, and if you maintain your temper and your cheerfulness, no amount of hard work or fatigue can lessen the satisfaction you must feel at the close of a Holiday Season. Your customer, your conscience, and your employer will all say, "Good! Well done."

If you have lived the life of a good bookseller, perhaps when it is all over, and you have earned your respite, St. Peter will assign you the easy job of waiting on the counter containing the "Six Best Sellers."

PERIODICAL "PUBLICITY RIDER" CASE BEFORE SUPREME COURT.

An unexpected turn was taken in the "publicity law" case now before the Supreme Court of the United States when Solicitor-General Bullitt, in a brief made public November 28, urged the court to interpret the law not in its letter but in its spirit. As was pointed out editorially in the Publishers' Weekly last October*, soon after the "rider" in question was passed, the penalty plainly stated in the law for non-observance of the publicity provisions is not denial of the second class mail privilege, but exclusion from the mails altogether. The newspapers claim this latter penalty to be unconstitutional.

LAW ADMITTED TO BE "HASTY AND UNCONSIDERED."

Solicitor-General Bullitt, admitting that the law was passed in a "hasty and unconsidered way," argued in the brief, that it was the duty of the court to give measures a reasonable and effective meaning. The Government asked the court in this instance to construe the law not as an attempt to regulate all newspapers and magazines, but as creating additional conditions on the use of the second-class mail privileges.

"Very probably Congress has no power to regulate the press or to say what shall or what shall not go into newspapers, or to require them to print the names of their bondholders or circulation, or to prescribe how they shall label their articles," said the Solicitor-General. "If the statute be construed as attempting to do those things it may possibly be void."

The Government's brief argued that while the law itself required "every newspaper" to file statements of editors, owners, bondholders and circulation under penalty of being "denied the privileges of the mail," yet language in the other portions of the law showed that it made the requirement only of newspapers "entered" at post-offices.

The right of the Government to change the conditions under which mail might be admitted to second class was defended in the brief.

"Every man, woman and child who mails a letter is being overtaxed for the benefit of the publisher," said the Government. "The 90,000,000 of people are being taxed directly for the benefit of 30,000 publishers. The Government overcharges people who mail letters about $70,000,000 a year, and that profit all goes to make up the loss sustained by carrying periodicals, etc., at the low second-class rates. We thus see that Congress has discriminated against the individual and in favor of the publisher. If it had the power to do so, can it not equally well make some changes in that classification?"

The brief pointed out that for over thirty years Congress had, without hitherto raising the question of constitutionality, prescribed certain conditions and rules for publicity (such as date, serial numbering, editors, circulation, etc.), upon which its admission to the second-class privilege was contingent.

The Government brief expressed the most doubt about the constitutionality of the feature of the law which makes an editor or publisher liable to a fine for printing a paid-for article without marking it "advertisement." The section was defended, however, on the ground that this paragraph was meant to be considered as a part of the preceding paragraph, and thus was merely another condition required of publishers before they could use the second-class mail privileges. The court was urged to hold the rest of the law constitutional, even if the "advertisement" paragraph were declared void.

NEW BRIEF AGAINST LAW FILED BY JAMES BECK.

On November 30 former Assistant Attorney-General James Beck, representing the Lewis Publishing Company, of New York, filed a brief attacking the law in dispute.

His brief discusses fully the power of the Federal Government indirectly to censor the press through the regulation of the mails, and reviews at length the struggle in England and America to free the press from restraint. Mr. Beck urges that, as the Constitution did not expressly give any power to regulate journalism, any attempted regulation can only be justified as a necessary and proper means to carry out some Federal function. He denies that the regulation of newspaper ownership and the enforced publicity of its business can be an appropriate means of carrying out the Federal power over the mails.

After reviewing the struggle which led, both in England and America, to the freedom of the press, he asserts that such liberty consists not only in freedom from absolute prohibition, but also of exemption from any burdensome or unreasonable restraint. The brief argues that the enforced publication of a newspaper company's circulation, and the publisher's creditors would unduly burden the power of the weak periodical to compete with the stronger, and in many cases drive the weak to the wall.

The brief further argues that the appropriation of the newspaper columns to enforce the policy of publicity, without compensation, violates the fifth amendment, in taking property without due process of law.

CASE HEARD IN SUPREME COURT, DEC. 2 AND 3.

Oral argument was begun in the United States Supreme Court, December 2, in the test case of the New York Journal of Commerce against the Post-Master General.

Robert C. Morris, of New York, made the opening argument for the newspapers, going over the grounds for unconstitutionality already cited.

The New York attorney argued the wording of the law showed unmistakably that it meant denial of all the privileges of the mail for non-observance; that it was impossible to read into the act, as argued by the Solicitor General, the words "second-class mail matter," which words were not there. Mr. Morris confronted the Government with the opinion which Attorney General Wickersham gave to Postmaster General Hitchcock in September, in which Mr. Wickersham himself then held that this part of the law meant the absolute exclusion of newspapers from every mail privilege and from the mails.

That the members of the Supreme Court were interested deeply in the case was evident from the close attention they paid and the number of questions asked by Chief Justice White and Associate Justices Hughes, Pitney, Day, Van Devanter and McKenna. Many of those questions went into the power of Congress over the mails, whether that power was absolute, and whether any sort of conditions might be prescribed. Other questions touched on the power of Congress to bar defamatory and immoral matter and lottery circulars from the mails.

Mr. Morris contended that there was no expressed power in the Constitution for this enactment. Going from the expressed powers to the police powers, he argued the exercise of the latter control must be reasonable, and where fundamental rights were involved they could not be overcome by the exercise of express or implied powers. He pointed out that the law in question did not regulate the mail nor go into the administration of the Post Office Department, nor was it based on questions of public morals, as there was no question that the matter to be barred from the mails was inherently decent.

Arguments before the Supreme Court closed Tuesday, Solicitor-General Bullitt closing for the Government and James M. Beck for the periodicals.

HAS CONGRESS "UNRESTRAINED POWER" OVER THE MAILS?

Mr. Beck said in part:

"The Solicitor General bases his contention upon the second and third defenses. Between these there is only a difference in degree. The contention is essentially the same, that either by the duress of a threatened exclusion from the mails or by the inducement of special privileges as to rates Congress is competent to effect objects which the Solicitor General practically concedes are not, in themselves, appropriate subjects for Federal legislation.

"The Solicitor General does not shrink from the logic of his contention. With admirable sincerity, and with even greater courage, he accepts and asserts the full logical extreme of that contention. He boldly asserts that the power of Congress over the mails is 'absolute' and 'unrestrained,' and that it can use such power for any purpose, however it may otherwise transgress the limited power of Congress.

"A more amazing and radical contention has never, to my knowledge, been submitted to this court.

"That I may not be charged with misstating his contention, I quote several typical passages in the Government's brief:

> As an incident to that vast development Congress has, and of necessity must have, absolute power to say what it will exclude from and what it will carry in the mails and the terms, conditions, and postal rates on which it will carry mail matter.
> A possible abuse of power is no argument against its existence, but we may as well observe that a denial of the mails to a paper because of its ownership or the views held by its owners may well be illegal as having no relation to the thing carried in the mails unless the views are expressed in the paper; but if such views are expressed in the paper, Congress can doubtless exclude them just as Congress could now exclude all papers advocating lotteries, prohibition, anarchy, or a protective tariff, if a majority of Congress thought such views against public policy.

"If, therefore, the next Congress should pass a law that no newspaper should be admitted to the privileges of second-class matter unless its editorial columns should support the views of the majority in the next Congress as to a revision of the tariff, the judiciary would be powerless to prevent such a strangling of free discussion.

"If so, it must logically follow that the next Congress could not only bribe the newspaper press of the country into acceptance of lower tariff duties by the privilege of cheap or free postage, but it could force them into such acquiescence by a denial of any mailing facilities whatever.

"That neither the next nor any American Congress would so offend the spirit of our institutions does not affect the test of such an illustration."

The case was taken under advisement by the Court.

REPEAL BILL INTRODUCED.

On Tuesday Senator McCumber, of North Dakota, introduced a bill repealing the "publicity rider" portion of the act in question. It is thought that no active steps will be taken for the repeal of the provisions until the Supreme Court of the United States has handed down its final ruling. If that ruling should sustain the contention of the New York newspapers involved, Mr. McCumber's measure will probably be dropped as unnecessary.

LIBRARY OF CONGRESS PASSES TWO-MILLION VOLUME MARK.

According to the annual report of Herbert Putnam, the Librarian of Congress, made public last Wednesday, our national library now has over 2,000,000 volumes and pamphlets, exclusive of the music and print collections (591,000 and 349,000 pieces, respectively), and maps and charts (129,000 pieces).

The accessions for the year were above the average, 120,000 books and pamphlets and 50,000 pieces in the other departments. The growth of the library has been about 100 per cent. in the last decade. Of the 120,000 books and pamphlets, 18,000 were acquired by purchase, 23,591 by gift, 19,835 by copyright, the remainder being exchanges, government documents or acquired from miscellaneous sources.

Among the year's noteworthy gifts are the Deinard collection of Judaica, 9936 volumes, from Jacob H. Schiff; the Bolton collection in chemistry and alchemy, 1631 volumes; the Napoleonic library of the late Maj. Karow, 300 volumes; a collection of 1254 volumes on Mexico and Central America, besides manuscript and music material of importance.

MEMORIAL MEETING FOR FRANK H. SCOTT.

A memorial meeting of the trade was called by the American Publishers' Association, at the rooms of the Aldine Club, on Friday, November 29, at 10.45 a.m. There were present a score of the representatives of leading publishing houses, including the present dean of the publishing trade, E. P. Dutton, who completed sixty years of trade experiences last month, and Thomas Y. Crowell, who has been a publisher for more than forty years.

Frederick A. Stokes, president of the Association, presided, and in calling the meeting to order, said:

"We are gathered to honor the memory of one who strengthened and adorned his profession, while he endeared himself to its members.

"As head of a great house that has become an institution of which our country is proud, and as a president of the American Publishers' Association, Frank H. Scott was a force working for the true interests of all, having to do with the production and distribution of literature. To their common good he gave unselfishly of his time, his ability and his gracious personality, and did so unfalteringly in the face of serious obstacles and discouragements.

"Of high attainments, wise in counsel, just, he was at the same time kindly, appreciative, considerate—always deserving 'the grand old name of gentleman.' With such a man, labor in a common cause became a pleasure, association of any kind a privilege.

"We need men of the type of Frank Scott, and shall miss him sadly; but we shall always remember him, and be helped by the remembrance."

He was followed by Frank H. Dodd, who spoke from a friendship for Mr. Scott which originated when the trio from Richmond, Ind., dwelt in the same boarding house with his family in New York.

Mr. Dodd said, in part: "I had a talk with him only three weeks ago about those early days in the publishing business. . . I knew him for years, but came to appreciate him better through common association in the common meetings of the club. He was a rare personality. There never was an instance in which he showed himself as the least bit self-conscious; there never passed a word from his lips that he had to excuse himself for; there never was a decision that was not from all viewpoints well considered. His was a well-balanced character, wise in counsel, fair to everyone. His words were clearly expressed, and as publishers we found we could depend upon him. . . He has drawn us to him in an unusual way by ties not only of respect, but of real affection. His character could be all summed up in those last words which he gave on his deathbed to his son-in-law: 'Be a good man.' . . . We shall not be able, not one of us, to fill his place, and we shall miss him more and more."

Stephen Farrelly and Albert F. Houghton followed, each dwelling upon the manly character of Mr. Scott, his success in keeping up a kindly feeling among the trade, and the remarkable friendships he had within his circle of business associations. "There was no man in the trade," said Mr. Farrelly, "for whom I had a higher personal regard and respect. . . He had wonderful tact and courtesy . . . great capacity for the expression of good will. He came to represent all that was best in the publishing business."

Mr. Houghton spoke of him as: "The most fair-minded, liberal and well-balanced man I ever met. . . His earnestness of purpose and sincerity impressed everyone. He would always discuss a thing from the fairest point of view. . . An example of the highest type of man in modern business life, this association will miss him. Every man feels better for simply having known such a type of man, and I trust the benefit of his example will leave a lasting impression."

A committee was appointed, consisting of Mr. Dodd, Mr. Houghton and Mr. Dutton, to prepare resolutions.

DE LUXE BOOK SWINDLE GROWS.

Further developments this week of the extent and ramifications of the business in fraudulent "de luxe" editions of books led post office inspectors to estimate the total losses therein at $15,000,000 Although this is probably exaggerated, exact information is already in the hands of the department of sales made aggregating nearly $2,000,000; and the true amount is undoubtedly much larger. Half of the victims so far have proved to be New Englanders, which section seems to have proved a fertile field. The district attorney of Boston is conducting an independent investigation, the results of which were laid before the grand jury there.

Meanwhile, the last two of the eleven men indicted by the New York grand jury in the Farmer case are now under arrest, Thomas P. Dunn surrendering himself in Pittsburgh, and Samuel T. Warfield in Chicago.

Each day swells the list of those who claim to have been victimized by the Farmers or their agents. In one day last week the Post Office authorities are said to have received half a dozen letters informing them that the writers have purchased "editions de luxe" from the Anglo-American Authors' Association. The total of the amounts mentioned in these letters is nearly $400,000.

Federal authorities were astounded at the exorbitant prices which were got from "easy" patrons. In one instance, a collection of volumes sold for $65,000 has an actual market value of about $700.

A memorandum made of a sale of a set of Mark Twain to Mrs. Annabelle Crombie, of 19 West Thirty-first Street, is as follows: Selling price, $5200; salesman's commission, $1810; cost, $468.

Other figures show these margins of profit:

Carlyle, thirty volumes, blue levant, cost $225 a volume; sold to Mrs. E. W. Bird for $3000 a volume.

Oriental series, twelve volumes, crepe cloth, cost $125 a volume; sold for $5000 a volume to Mrs. Bird.

Roosevelt, twenty-two volumes, cost $410 for set; sold at prices ranging from $6000 up to $22,000.

Balzac, forty volumes, full grain levant, water-color illustrated; cost $800 for set; sold from $8000 up.

PLAN TO PRESERVE NEWSPAPERS.

A DISCUSSION of proposed methods of preserving newspaper files for future generations was held last week, Thursday, at the Montague branch of the Brooklyn Public Library, and participated in by Dr. Frank P. Hill, librarian of the Brooklyn Public Library; John Norris, chairman of the committee on paper of the American Newspapers' Association; F. D. Carruthers of the New York World, Herbert F. Gunnison of The Brooklyn Daily Eagle, and Mr. Holden, representing the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY.

The conference and discussion were the result of a report of Dr. Hill concerning the condition of the newspaper files in the Brooklyn Public Library, made to the American Library Association, which was as follows: "In many instances, papers published within the last forty years had begun to discolor and crumble to such an extent that it would hardly pay to bind those which had been folded for any length of time. Further investigation showed that practically all of these newspapers were printed on cheap wood pulp paper, which carries with it the seeds of early decay, and that the life of a periodical printed on this inferior stock is not likely to be more that fifty years."

In an interesting and comprehensive report, which will be reprinted in the Library Journal, Mr. Norris, for the newspaper publishers, suggested three methods by which improvements may be obtained: First, by using a printing paper that will endure indefinitely. Second, by binding with materials that do not attract minute organisms. Third, by storing under conditions, (a) that do not deprive the paper of all its moisture, (b) or subject it to excessive dampness, (c) or subject it to chemical action produced by sunshine, or gas, or artificial heat, or similar agencies of deterioration, (d) or propagate insects or other growth.

Announcement was made that The Brooklyn Eagle, beginning January 1, 1913, would be able to supply libraries with copies of its paper printed on linen paper suitable for filing.

The report also dealt with the efforts of the United States Government to secure a permanent printing paper to be used on important historical documents of the Government, its original scientific contributions, and the publication of the statutes at large. A paper was finally secured by the Government for this purpose, which consisted of 75 per cent. rag and the remainder of bleached chemical wood, free from unbleached or ground wood pulp. The methods used by the Congressional Library at Washington, in caring for its newspaper files of the eighteenth century, also the system of caring for the files in use in the public libraries in Brooklyn, New York and Philadelphia were described in detail.

It was conceded that there would be no profit to the publishers in printing a small number of copies daily upon special paper. However, Mr. Gunnison stated that The Brooklyn Daily Eagle would be willing to undertake the plan for the purpose of making permanent the record of the news of the day.

The proceedings of this meeting will be referred to the newspaper publishers throughout the United States, also to the libraries and historical societies, in the hope that some uniform method of procedure may be adopted that will insure the printing of permanent copies of the great dailies of the country and the expense of so doing be divided between the publishers, the States and the societies most interested in preserving such historical data.

BORDEN LIBRARY GOING AT AUCTION.

CONTAINS MANY RARE FIRST EDITIONS, BINDINGS OF GREAT BEAUTY AND MANUSCRIPTS—LETTERS AND DOCUMENTS OF LORD NELSON AMONG THE TREASURES.

PRELIMINARY announcement was made last week of the coming auction sale of the library of the late M. C. D. Borden, under the direction of the American Art Association, No. 6

West Twenty-third Street, New York. The date has not been fixed. The collection includes many rare first editions, and is also remarkable for its beautiful modern bindings, editions de luxe, art works and extra-illustrated volumes.

Among the first editions in the collection are Beaumont and Fletcher, Barham's "Ingoldsby Legends," Boswell's "Life of Dr. Johnson," Sir Thomas Brown's "Religio Medici," the "Kilmarnock" Burns, Cowper's poems, "Robison Crusoe," Esquemeling's "Bucanniers," Gay's "Fables," Goldsmith's "Vicar of Wakefield" and "Deserted Village," Holinshed's "Chronicles," the first printed Homer (1488), Keat's poems, the "Imitatio Christi" (about 1471), twelve volumes of Luther's sermons (printed in his lifetime), Milton's poems, the four folio Shakespeares, all of Shelley's works, Spenser's "Faerie Queen" and "Complaints," Sterne's "Sentimental Journey," Swift's "Gulliver's Travels," and all the first five editions of Izaak Walton's "Compleat Angler."

Other interesting first editions are Wordsworth's own copies of the "Evening Walk" and "Descriptive Sketches," with numerous emendations and notes in his own hand, and a title page and several other pages written by Dorothy Wordsworth.

Among the fine bindings are volumes representing the work of the great modern binders.

Among the Borden treasures is the famous Gough collection of Cruikshank, in twenty-seven folio volumes, replete with etchings, proofs, original drawings and letters and said to surpass the famous collection in the British Museum.

A collection of letters and documents of Lord Nelson contains the original draft, in his handwriting, of the matter prepared by him for his biographers, besides numerous letters and documents of Lord Nelson and Lady Hamilton.

Another album belonged to the Duchesse de Berry. It contains autographs and documents of nearly all the rulers and famous personages of France, from Francis I. to the Count de Chambourd (1844). There also is an album of letters of the Empress Josephine to the Compte de Lavalette, and Napoleonic albums, which contains autograph letters and documents signed by Napoleon and letters from great men of the Empire.

A set of Burns' work contains the original manuscript of five of his well-known poems and six autograph letters.

The library includes a complete set of the Kelmscott books, printed by William Morris, two-thirds of them on vellum. There is also a complete set of the Grolier Club publications.

There are two copies of the "Cato Major" from Franklin's press, and the first book printed in New York, Keith's "Truth Advanced."

A catalogue of the library is being prepared by Lewis W. Hatch for the American Art Association.

BAPTIST VERSION OF BIBLE COMPLETED.

Begun in 1889—Contains Numerous Changes in Text from Both the Authorized and Revised Version.

That sectarianism, though declining, is not entirely dead, is proved by the recent publication of the completed "improved" version of the Bible, prepared especially for members of the Baptist Church. The new version, which has been 23 years in course of editing, being based on what is known as the Bible Union Version, is being published by the American Baptist Publication Society.

The original arrangement, made when the work of revision was started in 1889, was that each member of the editorial staff should be responsible for his own work. Professor Barnard C. Taylor, D.D., of Crozer Theological Seminary, revised Professor T. J. Conant's Bible Union version of Genesis, Job, the Psalms and Proverbs, and also the translation of Exodus, Leviticus, Numbers, Deuteronomy, Joshua, Judges, Ruth and First and Second Samuel. Professor J. R. Sampey, D.D., of the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, undertook to translate the First and Second Kings, First and Second Chronicles, Ezra, Nehemiah, Ecclesiastes, Song of Solomon and Lamentations. W. R. Harper, president of the University of Chicago, translated Isaiah and the minor prophets, while Professor Ira M. Price, D.D., of the same university, assumed the task of translating Jeremiah and Ezekiel.

In order that the new Bible would not appear as a commentary, it does not contain many notes. In the Authorized and Revised Versions of the Bible supplied words are printed in italics. In this work such words are reduced to a minimum and are enclosed in parentheses. Wherever the word "baptize" appears the word "immerse" is placed beside it in brackets. The "whale" of Jonah becomes a "big fish," following the precedent of the "sea monster" in the margin of the Revised Version.

The Ten Commandments and the Lord's Prayer have also undergone changes. The second law shows considerable departure from the usual Old Testament construction. The Elizabethan adjective, "graven" in "graven image," becomes the more modern equivalent "carved." Similarly, the divine displeasure is promised, according to this new version, not to "the children," but only to the "sons"; and for "showing mercy unto thousands" is substituted the more impressive phrase, "showing mercy to the thousandth generation."

The word "hell" has been eliminated from the version, the almost ultra-modern term, "underworld," taking its place.

PICK-UPS.

NOT ENOUGH.

"What do you think of Fielding?" she asked young Mr. Ashby.

"Oh, it's important, of course, but it won't avail anything without good batting."—Exchange.

OBITUARY NOTES.

MELANCTHON MONTGOMERY HURD.

MELANCTHON MONTGOMERY HURD, founder of the firm of Hurd & Houghton, died in New York, November 23, 1912, after an operation which to all appearance had been successful.

Mr. Hurd was born in Bridgeport, Conn., on January 21, 1828, the son of Philo Hurd. Although he prepared for college, intending to go to Yale, he gave this up and went into business, first in a general store in Bridgeport and then in railroading, his father being superintendent of the N. Y. & N. H. R. R., and later president of the Harlem R. R. But his taste was toward the book business, and in 1854, three years after his marriage, he bought out a book store in Bridgeport and ran it for a year, clearing $800. By attending to the trade sales in New York, Mr. Hurd was brought in touch with the trade, so that he found a wider field, entering, in 1855, the firm of Sheldon, Blakeman & Co., whose store was then at 115 Nassau Street, New York City.

MELANCTHON MONTGOMERY HURD, 1828-1912.

In 1863 he formed a partnership with Henry O. Houghton, whose Riverside Press was already famous, and founded the firm of Hurd & Houghton, having a publishing, retailing, jobbing and importing business on Broadway. Gradually the firm moved uptown, the last location being in Astor Place.

Mr. Hurd published the works of the Cary Sisters, Don Piatt, F. O. C. Darley and others, all of whom he knew personally. In 1865 he met on the steamer Mr. W. D. Howells, then returning from his consulship at Venice and bringing with him his first manuscript, "Venetian Days." This was published by Hurd & Houghton that fall, and met with deserved success. The friendship thus formed between these two lasted through life. Among the successes which gave the new firm standing were the Darley edition of Cooper, the first collected editions of the essays of Macaulay and of Carlyle, the Household edition of Dickens, in 56 vols., John Burroughs' "Wake Robin," etc., etc. The outlook, financially, for this last was so doubtful, that at first only 750 copies, from type, were printed, no plates being made. After these were sold, however, the demand continued, so the book was reset and plates made. The sale continues to the present day. Mr. Hurd had intimate business relations and strong personal friendships with the Harper brothers, the Appletons, the senior Charles Scribner, George H. Putnam, E. P. Dutton and others.

In 1871, when ill health compelled a cessation of business activity, he went abroad for two years. Although he resumed work on his return, he continued to take long vacations up to 1878, when he finally retired on the merging of the two firms, Hurd & Houghton, and James R. Osgood & Co.

From this time on he travelled widely, spending his summers in the mountains of this country or Europe and his winters in some warm climate, Bermuda, Honolulu, Florida, Jamaica, etc. One year he travelled around the world.

From his youth he was fond of mountain climbing and when, some 26 years ago, he decided to spend his summers in this country, he built at Intervale, N. H., a house commanding a fine view up the valley to Mt.

Washington and the Presidential Range. In 1885 he spent about three months with his two youngest sons on a walking trip through the Alps from the Tyrol to Zermatt where, to finish up the trip, they ascended the Matterhorn. He was then 57 years of age and probably the oldest man who had ever made the ascent, as his son, then 15, was the youngest. He more than once climbed and walked through the White Mountains and the Catskills, as well as the mountains of Spain and Norway.

Mr. Hurd was always a keen follower of sport, and only gave up playing tennis at the age of 70, when he took to croquet, or roque, and to bowls. His bowling green at his Intervale home was a favorite resort for all his friends. He delighted to gather together the children or young people for dances, games and all sorts of good times. Mr. Hurd had the keenest interest in all that was going on all over the world. He was an ardent believer in Roosevelt, and a Progressive in the best sense of the word. In October, 1911, he celebrated at Intervale his sixtieth wedding anniversary, at which were gathered his children and their wives and his grandchildren.

Mr. Hurd leaves a widow, a daughter, Miss Alice Hurd, and three sons, Alfred D., formerly connected with D. C. Heath & Co.; Richard M., president of Lawyers' Mortgage Company; and George A., president of The Mortgage-Bond Company of New York.

THE Rev. Dr. Robert Collyer, pastor emeritus of the Unitarian Church of the Messiah, New York City, died on November 30, at his home, 201 West Fifty-fifth Street. Dr. Collyer was stricken with paralysis on November 1. Born at Keighley, Yorkshire, England, on December 8, 1828, he was brought up to his father's business of blacksmithing. He attended the village school for three years, a rather unusual amount of education for a country lad in England at that time. When 20 years old he attended a Methodist revival meetings, announced his conversion, and forthwith became a local preacher. In 1850, immediately after his marriage to Miss Ann Armitage of Bradford, he set sail for America. Here he had a hard struggle to get along, but amid all his hardships was educating himself and forming those opinions for which he afterward became so well known. In 1859 Mr. Collyer left the Methodist Church and became a Unitarian, and went to Chicago. His work in Chicago was, however, broken into by a call to go to the front in the civil war. In 1879 the Church of the Messiah called Dr. Collyer to New York. Since 1893 he has been pastor emeritus, his congregation refusing to let him go entirely. Besides his work as a pastor, Dr Collyer found time to write a number of books. Among them are "Nature and Life," 1864; "The Life That Now Is," 1871; "The Simple Truth—a Home Book," 1878; "Talks to Young Men," 1888; "History of Ilkley in Yorkshire," (with Horsefall Turner.) 1883; "Things New and Old," 1893.

PROF. EBEN JENKS LOOMIS, astronomer and author, died in Washington on December 2. Prof. Loomis was born in Oppenheim, N. Y., and educated at the Lawrence Scientific School (Harvard). For fifty years he was an assistant in the Nautical Almanac. He was the author of "Wayside Sketches," 1894; "An Eclipse Party in Africa," 1896; and "A Sunset Idyl, and Other Poems," 1903.

DR. ALICE BUNKER STOCKHAM, physician, author and suffragist, died at her home in Alhambra, near Los Angeles, Cal., on December 2. She was born at Cardington, O., 1833, and graduated from the Eclectic Medical College, Cincinnati. Among her books are "Tokology, a book of maternity," 1883; "Koradine," 1893; "Karezza," 1896; "Tolstoi, a Man of Peace," 1900; "A Lover's World," 1903.

J. D. ROLLAND, president of the Rolland Paper Co., of Montreal, Canada, and of the J. B. Rolland & Fils Co., booksellers, stationers and printers, died last week.

THE death is reported of D. H. Whiting, of the Vosburgh & Whiting Co., of Buffalo, N. Y., booksellers and stationers.

GEORGE DOERNER, a bookseller and stationer at Little Rock, Ark., died recently.

POSTAL MATTERS.

ONE-CENT LETTER POSTAGE BILL.

ONE-CENT letter postage within a city where mail is first deposited would be provided by a bill introduced December 3 by Senator Penrose. The measure would extend the one-cent rate now applying in towns that have no carrier delivery to all cities, restoring the general "drop-letter" rate.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

A FRENCH study of Chaucer, by M. Emile Legouis, will be issued shortly by E. P. Dutton & Co. in an English translation made by L. Lalavoix.

VAUGHN KESTER'S "The Fortunes of the Landrays," published in 1905 by McClure, Phillips & Co., has been taken over by the Bobbs-Merrill Co., publisher of the other Kester books.

GURTRUDE FLOWER, of Madison Avenue, New York, has selected from the works of Coleridge, Poe, Rossetti, Longfellow, Bryant and Byron those poems recognized as of enduring worth, and now publishes them in a three-volume "Immortal Edition." The books are ready in four different bindings.

COPIES of "Ancestral Records and Portraits," a Grafton Press publication, hitherto sold to members of the Colonial Dames of America, Chapter I, only, are now for sale by the society. While the volumes are genealogical they are in narrative style. Seventy pages of Washington genealogy—thirteen generations of the name—are included.

BARSE & HOPKINS report that the fall sales of their trinity of anthologies—"To My Home," "To My Mother," and "Friendship"—have equalled 20,000. These gift books come in two bindings—art vellum, with cover decorations in two colors and gold, and Persian ooze leather, with moire end sheets.

PROF. CELESTIN DEMBLON, of the Université Nouvelle de Bruxelles, is the author of a new work on the identity of Shakespeare, which claims to solve at last that harassing mystery. Its title, "Lord Rutland est Shakespeare," is explanatory. The volume, in French of course, is published by Paul Ferdinando of Paris.

THE banking problem, about which we have heard much and shall most certainly hear more during the coming administration, is set forth in untechnical language in "The Aldrich Plan in the Light of Modern Banking," by Ludwig Bendix, chief of Statistical Department, Hollgarten & Co. Robert R. Johnston, of New York, is the publisher.

IT is stated that the third part of the great Huth library, the only one ever offered comparing in quantity, quality and value with the Hoe library, will probably not be put on sale before spring, owing to the many other important sales that Sotheby, Wilkinson & Hodge, who are conducting the dispersal of the Huth books, have on hand.

THE French "Christmas Bookshelf," the holiday number of Bibliographie de la France, is at hand. Its plethoric advertising section, nearly four hundred large octavo pages (or about three times as much as the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY carries), does not argue any lack of prosperity in the French book trade. Most of the advertising is illustrated.

ONE of the most interesting and elaborate art books of the year is Auguste Rodin's "Art," which Small, Maynard & Co. are publishing. Its chief value lies in the analysis of art—painting as well as sculpture—which the sculptor gives in the form of conversation. To those who have studied Rodin and found him paradoxical this explanation of his own viewpoint will be of the deepest interest.

THE Reverend R. J. Patterson conceived the original idea of appealing to the play instinct of the drunkard, as well as his social conscience, with the result that his "Catch-My-Pal Temperance Movement" brought about the reformation of one of the most drunken districts of Ireland, and is now sweeping Europe. How all this was accomplished he explains in "Catch-My-Pal," just published by George H. Doran Co.

COINCIDENT with the publication of his new book, "The Story of a Round House, and Other Poems" (Macmillan), comes the announcement from London that on Thanksgiving Day John Masefield, the author of "Captain Margaret," "The Tragedy of Nan," etc., was presented with the Royal Society of Literature's annual Edmond de Polignac prize of five hundred dollars. The work which won this distinction was "The Everlasting Mercy," which J. M. Barrie describes as "incomparably the finest literature of the year." Mr. Masefield has undoubtedly accomplished a notable feat by reviving the narrative poem of the past and adapting it to the needs and emotions of the present age.

SEVEN additions to the Cambridge Manuals of Science and Literature, on widely diverse topics, have just been brought out by G. P. Putnam's Sons: "The Work of Rain and Rivers," by T. G. Bonney; "The Psychology of Insanity," by Bernard Hart; "China and the Manchus," by Herbert A. Giles; "Brasses," by J. S. M. Ward; "The Individual in the Animal Kingdom," by Julian S. Huxley; "The Civilization of Ancient Mexico," by L. Spence; and "Brewing," by A. Chaston Chapman.

THOSE glittering mysteries which never fail to lure, the secrets of royalties, will color a new volume by Henry W. Fischer, whose "Private Lives of William II. and his Consort and Secret History of the Court of Berlin" was translated into almost every known language. The new book, "Secret Memoirs of Royal Saxony; Story of Louise the Ex-Crown Princess," from her diary lost at the time of her elopement, is published to-day by Fischer's Foreign Letters, Inc., of Bensonhurst, New York.

THE Outlook announces as its main feature for 1913 "Some Chapters from a Possible Autobiography," by Theodore Roosevelt. It is stated that they will be not only of national but of international importance, Mr. Roosevelt talking with greater intimacy of his life, motives, ideals and aspirations than he has in his letters and addresses or in his previous books. The papers will cover his life from boyhood to date, will be fully illustrated with photographs, facsimiles and other material, and will undoubtedly attract much attention.

SCIENCE, with its order and system, attacks one by one our haphazard customs, and now the "art of giving" must be reconstructed according to the best methods. In "Modern Philanthropy," just published by Dodd, Mead & Co., William H. Allen, Director of the Bureau of Municipal Research, gives a "Magna Charta for givers." His suggestions are based on a study of the appeals which came to Mrs. E. H. Harriman during a period of two years.

MITCHELL KENNERLEY, Wednesday, sent 100 copies of Frank Harris' "The Man Shakespeare" to free libraries and colleges in response to a request from J. Pierpont Morgan, contained in the following letter: "I have read with much interest the book by Frank Harris, entitled 'The Man Shakespeare,' which, I have observed, is published by you. I am of the opinion that the contents of this book are of such value to students of English literature that I would ask you to send copies to the libraries and colleges where you consider it will be of service, forwarding bill for same to me."

A. C. McClurg & Co. have just published a revised edition of their "Classified Library Catalogue," the complete title page of which reads: "Classified Catalogue of Selected Standard Books Suitable for a Public Library; proportioned in accordance with Approved Library Methods; Fourth Edition; containing also books adapted to school library purposes. Compiled by the Library Department, A. C. McClurg & Co., Chicago." The list contains approximately 4500 titles, selected from the publications of various American publishing houses. Special care has been exercised in the compilation of the juvenile division. Prices are given.

Mme. Steinheil, of Paris, whose "Memoirs" were published in this country last month by Sturgis & Walton, brought an action for libel some time ago against Margrave L. Adam, the author, and Thomas Warner Laurie, the publisher of the book entitled "Women and Crime," in which is recalled the charge brought against Mme. Steinheil of murdering her husband and mother. An enormous sum was originally claimed from Mr. Laurie, but owing to his "courtesy and good will toward Mme. Steinheil," to which her counsel paid a tribute, it was arranged when the case came to trial last week that the case should be settled for a much smaller amount—the precise sum was not mentioned—which will be paid and every imputation against her withdrawn. Justice Darling granted injunctions restraining further publications of the passages referring to Mme. Steinheil.

The Oxford University Press, American branch, has just printed a special descriptive list of Oxford Bibles, suitable for Sunday-school scholars, teachers, ministers, etc., etc. In fact, it is a list giving a selection of Oxford Bibles at all prices, and suitable for all occasions. A quantity of these lists, with the bookseller's imprint, is being sent to the trade throughout the country, accompanied by a letter reading, "How to Increase Your Holiday Trade in Oxford Bibles." It is pointed out that the average person is nonplussed when trying to make a selection from a regular catalogue, but this list is so arranged that when a purchaser decides for whom the Bible is intended, and the price to be paid for same, the selection can be made almost instantly. The bookseller is requested to distribute these lists among his clerks, and there is no doubt but that this will help to increase his holiday trade in Oxford Bibles.

BUSINESS NOTES.

Blue Hill, Neb.—Charles E. Stevens has succeeded J. F. Grimes, druggist and bookseller.

Dayton, O.—Everybody's Book Shop has suffered a loss by fire.

Fairbury, Ill.—George E. Milne, druggist and bookseller, has been succeeded by W. B. Decker & Sons.

Galesburg, Ill.—The O. T. Johnston Company, department store, issue an attractively illustrated booklet commemorative of their semi-centennial. Few, if any, cities the size of Galesburg boast a department store larger or more finely equipped.

New York City.—Following the uptown movement in the paper trade the Seymour Co., long a familiar landmark on Duane Street, has established new quarters at Seventh Avenue and Twenty-fourth Street, where they have 17,600 square feet devoted to the display and sale of high grade cover papers.

Pasadena, Cal.—J. P. Wilson, formerly of the Mauro & Wilson Co., Burlington, Iowa, came here for his health sometime ago, but is now about to engage actively in his previous line of business: books and stationery.

Quincy, Ill.—George H. Lyford & Co., booksellers, newsdealers and stationers, have filed a petition in bankruptcy.

San Francisco, Cal.—Radston's stationery and bookstore of Berkeley has branched out in business and a new store has been added in San Francisco. A splendid location has been secured at 687 Market Street, near Third; and a large line of fancy stationery, fountain pens, cards and books is being carried.

Youngstown, O.—The Weil Hartzell Co., booksellers and stationers, are in bankruptcy.

VISITING BUYERS—NEW YORK CITY.

For the Week Ending Dec. 4, 1912.

Clarke, Somers. Christian antiquities in the Nile Valley: a contribution towards the study of the ancient churches; with maps and plans. N. Y., Oxford Univ. 234 p. F. $11.75 n.

The buildings which grew up under Christian influence in Egypt have, as yet, been little studied, but these ruins extend not only from the sea to Aswan, but south, far away into the Sudan. When the Egyptians were converted to Christianity, how and by whom is not certainly known, they did not erect churches in the traditional way in which their forefathers erected the temples, but made a clean cut with the past, and Byzantine influence dominated everything native. It is these ruins which are here studied. Index.

Coleridge, S: Taylor. The complete poetical works of Samuel Taylor Coleridge, including poems and versions of poems now published for the first time; ed., with textual and bibliographical notes by Ernest Hartley Coleridge. In 2 v. v. 1, Poems; v. 2, Dramatic works and appendices. N. Y., Oxford Univ. 16+492; 8+496-1198 p. (54 p. bibl.) O. $5.25 n.

Colles, H: Cope. The growth of music; a study in musical history for schools. pt. 1, From the troubadours to J. S. Bach. N. Y., Oxford Univ. 159 p. D. $1.35 n.

Takes a few salient works by a few of the greatest composers, and traces the growth of musical technique by means of them. Discusses as far as possible those works which young people are likely to hear at concerts, in church, or at home, or can study in their school classes with the aid of a teacher. Begins with the troubadours and ends with Handel and Bach. Numerous cross references show the influence one composer had upon another.

Cousins, Fk. Colonial architecture; introd. by Glenn Brown; series 1, Fifty Salem doorways. Garden City, N. Y., Doubleday, Page. c. pls. $5 n., in portfolio.

For more than twenty years Mr. Cousins has been making a series of photographs of the best examples of colonial houses and architectural details. Here fifty of these views are reproduced on heavy paper in a portfolio, on the back of each plate is a brief description. An introduction on the place Salem houses hold as architectural achievements is included. It is probable that there will be other collections by Mr. Cousins, issued in this form.

Donne, J: The poems of John Donne; ed. from the old editions and numerous manuscripts; with introds and commentary by Herb. J. C. Grierson. In 2 v. v. 1, The text of the poems with appendixes; v. 2, Introduction and commentary. N. Y., Oxford Univ. 24+474; 153+275 p. O. $5.75 n.

Editor is Chalmers professor of English literature in the University of Aberdeen.

Early English classical tragedies; ed., with introd. and notes by J: W. Cunliffe. N. Y., Oxford Univ. 100+352 p. D. $2.50 n.

Editor is professor of English in Columbia University and associate director of the School of Journalism.

Emerson, Ralph Waldo. Journals of Ralph Waldo Emerson; with annotations; ed. by E: Waldo Emerson and Waldo Emerson Forbes. v. 7, 1845-1848; v. 8, 1849-1855. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin. c. 19+565; 23+588 p. pors. D. ea., $1.75 n.

Volumes comprise the period from 1844 to the early fifties. The annexation of Texas as a slave state was imminent, and Mr. Emerson spoke at indignation meetings. In 1846 the new lectures on Representative men were in great demand. In September Mr. Emerson sailed for England and had an opportunity of meeting a great many of the most prominent men and women of the time. The next May he attended lectures at the Sorbonne, Paris, during the exciting time of the counter-revolution, returning home to Concord in September. Here he resumed his studies and wood-walks—very interesting ones with Ellery Channing are recorded.

Flannery, M. Jay. Songs under open skies. Cin., Stewart & Kidd. c. 91 p. D. $1 n.

Fragments of a Zadokite work; tr. from the Cambridge Hebrew text and ed., with introd. notes and indexes, by R. H. Charles. N. Y., Oxford Univ. 41 p. Q. pap., $1.75 n.

Work in Hebrew written towards the close of the first century B.C., representing the beliefs and expectations of a body of reformers, the Sons of Zadok, who sprang up in the second century B.C. within the priesthood, as the Pharisees had within the laity.

Olcott, Frances Jenkins. The children's reading. Bost., Houghton Mifflin. c. 10+344 p. D. $1.25 n.

Author was for many years head of the Children's Department, Carnegie Library, Pittsburgh. In this book she reviews the entire field of juvenile literature. She tells what elements are necessary to make up children's books—the value of history and biography, the effect of modern fiction, the importance of legends and fairy-lore, and so on. She points out not only what books are helpful but also what books are harmful. Among the interesting points which she brings to the front is a list of the books which great men of all ages have read during their early days and how these books helped them in their careers. Appendix contains a purchase list of children's books. Index.

Patterson, Rev. R. J. Catch-my-pal; a story of good Samaritanship. N. Y., Doran. 192 p. D. $1 n.

Story of the Catch-my-pal Temperance Movement, which had its inception in Armagh, one of the most drunken districts of Ireland, swept that district free of drink in an incredibly small time and is now spreading through Europe. Author, who started the propaganda, took his idea from Christ's calling of the disciples, Christ called Peter, Peter called Andrew, etc.—each convert becomes responsible for the conversion of some one else. By appeal to the social conscience of the drunkard and to his play-instinct, Mr. Patterson achieved instant success.

"Petit homme rouge," pseud. The favorites of Louis XIV.; with 4 portraits. Bost., Badger. 9+280 p. O. $3 n.

By author of "The favourites of Henry of Navarre," etc. Introductory chapter, treating of the influence exercised in the reign of Louis XIII., is followed by the story of the Grand Monarqui's numerous love affairs, beginning with his youthful passion for Mazarin's niece, Marie Mancini. Then come the successive royal mistresses, Louise de la Vallière, Mme. de Montespan, and Mme. de Maintenon, who became his wife. His passing entanglements with other women are also recorded. Index.

Petre, Fs. Loraine. Napoleon's last campaign in Germany, 1813; with 17 maps and plans. N. Y., J: Lane. 11+403 p. O. $3.50 n.

In the author's first two histories of Napoleon's campaigns, "Napoleon's campaign in Poland, 1806-1807," and "Napoleon's conquest of Prussia, 1806," the Emperor is at his greatest as a soldier. The third, "Napoleon and the Archduke Charles, 1809," showed the commencement of the decay of his genius. Now, in 1813, he has seriously declined. The military judgment of Napoleon, the general, is constantly fettered by the pride and obstinacy of Napoleon, the Emperor. Index.

Rauschenbusch, Wa. Christianizing the social order. N. Y., Macmillan. c. 12+493 p. D. $1.50 n.

Author's former book, "Christianity and the social crisis," calls for a social awakening of the moral and religious forces. This one shows that this awakening is now taking place. The present social order is examined to determine what portions have already been Christianized and what portions have not yet submitted to the revolutionizing influences of the Christian law and spirit. The processes by which these unredeemed sections of modern life can be Christianized are discussed and a Christian social order in the process of making is exhibited. Index.

By woodcraft he means nature study, certain kinds of hunting, the art of camping and all good outdoor athletics. Photography is recognized as a branch of nature work, and camper-craft is made to include the simplest methods of triangulation, star-craft, finding one's way, sign language, as well as many branches of Indian-craft. Index.

Sidney, Sir Philip, and Languet. Hubert. The correspondence of Philip Sidney and Hubert Languet; ed. by W: Aspenwall Bradley. Bost., Merrymount Press. c. 31+229 p. O. (Humanist's lib.; ed. by Lewis Ernstein.) $3.

Sir Philip Sidney first met Hubert Languet in the house of Andreas Wechel, the Protestant printer, at Frankfort, in the autumn of 1572. Both had just witnessed the massacre of St. Bartholomew in Paris, Sidney safely hidden by Walsingham, but Languet, a Huguenot, was in great danger. Though Sidney was only eighteen and the Frenchman fifty-four, they became close friends and kept up a correspondence in which they discussed the great questions of the times. These are the letters presented here, and will be found full of affection and humor, as well as historical interest.

Skeat, Rev. Wa. W: The science of etymology. N. Y., Oxford Univ. 18+242 p. O. $1.50 n.

By Elrington and Bosworth professor of Anglo-Saxon, University of Cambridge. The Publishers' Weekly

Subscription Rates

One year, postage prepaid in the United States, $4.00; foreign, $5.00.

Single copies, 10 cents. Educational Number, in leatherette, 50 cents; Christmas Bookshelf, 25 cents.

Advertising Rates

One page	$25 00
Half page	14 00
Quarter page	7 00
Eighth page	4 00
One-sixteenth page	2 00

The above rates are for unspecified positions. Special rates for preferred position (full pages only).

Higher rates are charged for the Summer Reading. Educational Number and Christmas Bookshelf, and for the monthly Book Review supplement sections.

Advertising copy should reach us Tuesday noon—earlier, if proof is desired out-of-town. Forms close Thursday noon.

Under the heading "BOOKS WANTED" booktrade subscribers, under their own names, are given five nonpareil lines (exclusive of address) free advertisement for specific books out of print in any issue except special numbers, but not exceeding 100 lines a year. If over five lines are sent the excess is at 10 cents a line. Books not out of print, unspecified wants, repeated matter, and all advertisements from nonsubscribers cost 10 cents a line. Objectionable books are excluded so far as they are noted.

In answering, please state edition, condition and price, including postage or express charges. Houses that will deal exclusively on a cash-on-delivery basis should put [Cash] after their firm name. The appearance of advertisements in this column, or elsewhere in the WEEKLY, does not furnish a guarantee of credit. While it endeavors to safeguard its columns by withholding the privilege of advertising should occasion arise, booksellers should take usual precautions in extending credit.

"Books Wanted" must be designated by actual title, not by "any."

Write your wants plainly, on one side of the sheet only. Illegible "wants" are ignored. The WEEKLY is not responsible for errors. Parties with whom there is no account must pay in advance.

Under "BOOKS FOR SALE" or for other small undisplayed advertisements, the charge is 10 cents a nonpareil line. No reduction for repeated matter. Count seven words to the line.

THE CLIQUE

The Recognised Organ of the ANTIQUARIAN BOOK TRADE

This "unique paper" was founded for the benefit of the ANTIQUARIAN BOOK TRADE in 1890; and so marked has been its success that no bookseller of any standing can now afford to be without it.

The paper is issued every Saturday, and supplied to the Trade only. This unique feature renders it the ONLY paper published in Great Britain in which trade prices can be fearlessly advertised, and it is thus the BEST MEDIUM for wholesale houses who desire to appeal direct to the trade.

As a means of obtaining "BOOKS WANTED" its columns have long been recognised, not only here but abroad, as the MOST SUCCESSFUL which have ever been placed at the service of advertisers. It is received and read by every ANTIQUARIAN BOOKSELLER in the United Kingdom and the chief houses abroad.

SUBSCRIPTION, 8s. 8d. PER ANNUM. Subscriptions end at December 31st. Subscribers joining after January 1st should therefore deduct 2d. for each week that has passed. Any "live" bookseller can make the subscription out of the first number he receives.

SPECIMEN NUMBER GRATIS on receipt of trade card.

Our terms for advertisements are lower, notwithstanding that we stand FIRST among Antiquarian Book-trade organs, than those of any paper in the world.

THE CLIQUE is the official organ of the International Asssociation of Antiquarian Booksellers.

Reference List of New Publications

Recorded in NOVEMBER, 1912

This Reference List enters the books recorded during the month under (1) author, in Clarendon type, anonymous books having Clarendon type for the first word; (2) title in Roman; (3) subject-heading in SMALL CAPS; (4) name of series in Italics.

A colon after initial designates the most usual given name, as: A: Augustus; B: Benjamin; C: Charles; D: David; E: Edward; F: Frederick; G: George; H: Henry; I: Isaac; J: John; L: Louis; N: Nicholas; P: Peter; R: Richard; S: Samuel; T: Thomas; W: William.

For books received sizes are given in CAPS, Q, O, D, etc., books not received sizes are given in Roman numerals, 4°, 8°, 12°, etc. Prices are added except when not supplied by publisher or obtainable only on specific request. Where not specified the binding is cloth.

Those desiring to learn the entire publishing output of the month in any one field should look under one of the following MAIN HEADINGS:

PHILOSOPHY	MEDICINE	LITERATURE
RELIGION AND THEOLOGY	AGRICULTURE	POETRY
SOCIOLOGY	HOUSEHOLD ECONOMICS	DRAMA
LAW	BUSINESS	FICTION
EDUCATION	ENGINEERING, TECHNOLOGY	BIOGRAPHY
PHILOLOGY	FINE ARTS	GEOGRAPHY AND TRAVEL
SCIENCE	GAMES, SPORTS, AMUSEMENTS	HISTORY

Besides the titles listed under each of these headings cross reference is made from each to a limited number of cognate headings which collectively give all the new publications of the month in the given subject or group of subjects.

Inquirers looking for books on a specific topic should look under the general subject to which that topic belongs, i.e., GEOLOGY rather than SILURIAN PERIOD; MATHEMATICS rather than CALCULUS; ECONOMICS rather than WAGES. Books regarding specific Religious denominations, countries and persons, however, should still be sought for under their individual names.

Some Tributes to

"The Americans in Panama"

By WILLIAM R. SCOTT

$1 35 net; postpaid, $1.47

"Mr. Scott has provided the clearest, most readable and understandable book on the Panama Canal I have yet seen. It tells just what we need to know and tells it interestingly. It will be a great help to anyone who wishes to know what Uncle Sam has done in the Isthmus and every American should have the desire to know." —BURTON HOLMES, World-famed Traveler and Lecturer.

"To the reader desiring a popular account of building the Panama Canal, we are inclined to rate this as the best book that has so far appeared."—Engineering News.

"A clear, interesting and enthusiastic account." —N. Y. Sun.

"There is not a tiresome chapter in it." —Pittsburgh Gazette-Times.

"All phases described in a remarkably intelligible and concise manner."—Dallas News.

"Of great value as a text or guide book." —Portland (Me.) Express and Advertiser.

Everyone seeking instruction about the currency question, which will be one of the main features of the next session of Congress, should read "The Aldrich Plan in the Light of Modern Banking," by LUDWIG BENDIX.

This book combines with a careful analysis of the bill proposed by the National Monetary Commission a study of the money and credit systems of the United States and of the leading European countries, knowledge of which is necessary for the understanding of our currency problem. Usually this question is treated technically in a manner scarcely understood by the layman and fails to arouse his interest. Mr. Bendix' book, on the contrary, is written in such simple style that every educated man may easily understand this currency problem—and the problem is of first importance to every man in American business life.

IMPORTANT NEW BOOKS ON VARIED SUBJECTS

The Great Art Gift-Book of the Year

ART

By AUGUSTE RODIN

(Translated from the French of Paul Gsell by Mrs. Romilly Fedden)

106 illustrations in photogravure and half-tone. Large quarto Boxed. Buckram, $7.50 net; three-quarter levant, $15.00 net; carriage additional.

A book which takes its place at once as the most important art book in years. It is written in the form of conversation, and the greatest of modern sculptors discusses freely not only his own art, but also art in general, painting no less than sculpture, with a spontaneity and charm seldom found in books written more conventionally. It covers practically the whole range of art and abounds in memorable analyses of the works of the masters of painting and sculpture, ancient and modern.

The Pope's Green Island

By W. P. RYAN

"The best book on Ireland ever written by an Irishman." A survey of present-day Ireland of vital interest to millions of Americans. 8*vo.* $1.50 net; by mail, $1.65.

The Bayreuth Letters of Richard Wagner

Edited and Translated by CAROLINE V. KERR

An indispensable book for the Wagner lover, telling the fascinating story of the great composer's struggles for the Festival Theatre at Bayreuth, treating of the years just subsequent to the period covered in the recently published autobiography. Illustrated. 8*vo.* $2.50 net; by mail, $2.70.

Floor Games

By H. G. WELLS

The versatile author of "Tono-Bungay," "Marriage" and "The War of Worlds" here shows his skill in dealing with children. Every house should have a floor on which games can be played, he says, and he shows the games to play. "Floor Games" is one of the most successful books of the present season.

"The book which should make mothers and fathers and uncles the most excited is H. G. Wells's 'Floor Games.'"—Chicago Evening Post. Quarto, with over 100 illustrations. $1.00 net; by mail, $1.10.

Cowboy Lyrics

By ROBERT V. CARR

A volume of rousing verse depicting the range and its—by turns—philosophical, humorous, rip-roaring over-lord, the cow-puncher. 12*mo.* $1.25 net; by mail, $1.35.

Echoes From Vagabondia

By BLISS CARMAN

A volume of new lyrical poems like those which gave the author fame as the joint contributor with Richard Hovey to "Songs from Vagabondia."

12*mo. Paper boards,* $1.00 net; by mail, $1.10. Limp leather, $1.25 net; by mail, $1.35.
